REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

To the Honorable School Committee, Board of Selectmen and Citizens of Dayton:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—It affords me great pleasure to submit this, my thirteenth annual report of schools. The year has passed so rapidly and satisfactorily that we can hardly realize that another year's work has been completed.

There was only one change in the teaching staff this past year. Miss Elizabeth Sylvester was elected as teacher of the Claybrook School to take the place of Miss Charlotte Cole, who resigned to accept a school in Saco.

I have pointed out on numerous occasions to the citizens of Dayton that in some ways the school population was unique. There are but 59 pupils enrolled in the elementary schools, yet there are 18 pupils attending high school. In other words, Dayton has nearly one-third as many high school pupils as grade pupils. This is an unusual situation and has been evident in your schools since 1934.

In 1936 and 1937, the June reports showed that Dayton had almost exactly half as many pupils in the high school as in the grade school.

I take this to mean that the citizens of Dayton realize, in no small measure, the necessity which confronts young people in preparing themselves to compete successfully for their place in the world when they have reached their majority. The days that lie before your young people have quite as much uncertainty and change as have for some generations affected their forebears. Education is the one and only thing that you can give these young people that will assist and sustain them in the crises of the future. Education is both preparation and insurance at one and the same time.

It seems more than likely that your census will remain at or near the mark reported the last few years. The same general stationary conditions may be expected to be reflected in both census, school attendance and general enrollment.

REPAIRS

Two of your schoolhouses were painted this past summer. A fence was completed at Claybrook, with a rail protection placed between the school building and the highway. At Clark School, posts were set along the west side of the school yard for a distance.

The cleaning of the toilets, varnishing of the seats, oiling of the floors and some inside painting was done as usual. The Superintending School Committee are firmly convinced that general upkeep of school property can best be done before extensive damage has occurred by neglect. Your repair work has been handled by Mr. Arthur Ramsdell and has had much personal supervision. The teachers have a great deal of pride in making the schoolrooms places of helpful and generally attractive surroundings, much like the better homes in your midst. One of the State officials that visits the Dayton schools has been quoted as saying that "it is a pleasure to see so orderly a rural school."

Unless the Claybrook School has almost perfect attendance throughout the entire school year, it is likely that the fifteen hundred days of aggregate attendance may not be attained. In which case an item in the town warrant will have to be carried affirmatively to keep the school open. However, barring sickness, if the children attend without interruption, the aggregate can just be made.

TEXTBOOKS

It has been the policy of the Superintending School Committee to recommend a reasonable appropriation for textbooks. This was done with the belief that in the long run no school could go far without good textbooks. Moreover, a good teacher could not be expected to do good work with poor textbooks.

In the Maine State School Bulletin of January, 1938, the State Commissioner of Education reminds the towns that it is both the statutory obligation of the towns and also a good investment to provide such textbooks as will be adequate. The following quotation seems to me sound, "Probably a safe guide to determine the necessary amount (of textbook appropriation) would be anywhere from two dollars to three dollars per pupil per year." If Dayton should follow this suggestion, the amount of textbook appropriation would fall between one hundred sixteen dollars and one hundred sixty-four dollars. At the present time there should be several new textbooks introduced to take the place of badly-worn or obsolete books.

I wish to take this occasion to express my high regard for the coöperation accorded me by the teaching staff and express my confidence in their ability to render to your youth a service far beyond the remuneration accorded them in monetary return.

Your School Committee have counseled with me and given of their time and energy without limit, and we extend to you all a hearty welcome to come and inspect the various schools of your town.

Sincerely,

H. C. HULL.
